RENDERING

NEXT STOP

The initial idea was to create an image that would echo the theme of the competition as much as the context that inhabits the wall, both chromatically and conceptually. I therefore decided to play with the presence of the station. The leader, with a suitcase in his hand, drags the rest of the group towards a departure/restart. The project is meant to be an invitation to put aside the fear transmitted by the pandemic and slowly return to normality.

Among the many fears that the pandemic has instilled in us is that of travelling. The presence of some facemasks is a reminder of the historical period we are living through and is an invitation to start again without ever leaving caution aside. The leader himself carries, tied to his wrist, the protective device to be used should the need arise. I decided to generate a dynamic composition that recalls the shape and motion of the train. A train of people who cannot overcome the will to restart represented by the leader.

The work will be painted with roller and brush using an impressionist technique, giving a result that is not illustrative and didactic but totally pictorial, fresh, like a large painting.

2. CURRICULUM VITAE

Edoardo Ettore was born in L'Aquila in 1994. After attending the Liceo Scientifico Marie Curie in Giulianova (TE), he enrolled at the L'Aquila Academy of Fine Arts in 2013. During his years at the academy, he began to approach painting: a spontaneous, gestural painting that is still the hallmark of his paintings. In 2015/16 and 2018/19 he lives in Valencia (Spain) and attends the UPV (Universitat Politècnica de Valencia) thanks to the 'Erasmus' programme.

He experiments with several fields of visual arts, being particularly fascinated by installation and street art, expressions that often coexist in his works. Hand in hand with his experience abroad, an interest in the dynamics of modern society and social criticism begins to manifest itself in his works. In February 2020, he obtained his second level diploma at the Academy of Fine Arts in L'Aquila.

He currently devotes himself to predominantly pictorial research, jumping from small paintings to large murals. Using different techniques, he paints familiar images captured every day by our gazes, now attentive now distracted, such as a waitress on the phone or a snapshot of an evening with friends. His poetics focuses on the relationship between the individual and society, on aspects of the 'pre-packaged' world in which we live. Questioning these issues leads the spectator to reflect, using the tones of sarcasm.
